Sustainable Landscaping

Rebates available to make your lawn a Colorado native

$500
rebate

Colorado's semi-arid climate, where water is scarce, is not ideal for decorative grasses like Kentucky bluegrass to grow naturally. In fact, the average landscape accounts for up to 50% of a home's annual water usage. The City of Englewood is encouraging residents to think locally, by planting native and adaptable plants that can save water, reduce maintenance, benefit pollinators and reduce or eliminate the need for fertilizer or other soil amendments.

Englewood has begun the conversion to low-water landscaping in some parks. For example, since Depot Park changed from traditional bluegrass landscaping to prairie meadow grasses, 73% less water is being applied to irrigate this area, and that savings is expected to rise to 80-90% over the long term.

As part of the city's Water Efficiency Plan, the Englewood Utilities Department and sustainability coordinator are exploring more ways to return to native landscaping, including offering incentives. Thanks to a partnership with Resource Central, the Garden In A Box and Lawn Replacement programs are available to offer homeowners easy ways to make the switch. Through the Lawn Replacement Program, residents will receive a $500 rebate to utilize Resource Central to remove their turf, hire a contractor to remove their turf or remove the turf on their own and receive up to three Garden In A Box kits.

Garden In A Box is a professionally designed, water-wise garden kit that is stocked with more than 80% native Colorado plants. These kits include plant-by-number maps, seasonal maintenance suggestions and watering recommendations to help residents with their new gardens. Residents can also receive a discount towards a Garden In A Box separate from the Lawn Replacement Program.

Rebates are limited and available on a first-come, first-served basis. Learn more and apply at resourcecentral.org.

SCHOOLS

Englewood Schools to Welcome New Superintendent this Summer

Englewood Schools will welcome a new superintendent July 1. Joanna Polzin will replace Dr. Wendy Rubin, who is retiring after serving as superintendent for the past eight years.

Since 2015, Polzin has held different leadership positions in the district, most recently as the district's deputy superintendent.

Polzin was chosen as the next superintendent due to the success she has shown in her leadership positions as well as her knowledge and love of the district and the Englewood community.

"Englewood puts students and student learning at the forefront of what we do every day," said Polzin after being offered the position of superintendent. "I will continue to be an advocate and strive for excellence in education for every student in Englewood Schools."

Polzin also thanked Dr. Wendy Rubin for her work in putting the district on an upward trajectory. "Wendy, thank you for taking Englewood to the next level. I do not take lightly the realization that I am standing on the shoulders of greatness," Polzin stated.

THE MAYOR'S CORNER

Mayor
Othoniel Sierra
District 1
720-551-3301

As I've met with citizens about the attainable housing aspect of our CodeNext development code update project, one of the items that has come up is the idea of enabling housing development to occur along South Broadway and within the CityCenter area, a portion of which could be what I classify as truly affordable housing for those making between 30 to 60% of Englewood's area median income, or AMI.

Our staff is following up on the Housing Assessment that was completed earlier this year by assessing city-owned properties that may be suitable for housing that could meet AMI targets. Some of the properties that could be considered include the former and now vacant fire station on Tejon Street and vacant land around city-owned assets like the Service Center on Platte River Drive. There are also properties co-owned with the City of Sheridan near Broken Tee Golf Course that would require additional analysis and discussion with Sheridan's leaders.

Zeroing in on the South Broadway and CityCenter areas, these districts are already zoned to allow for higher density housing development and housing across income levels is one of the specific goals that the council has established for the planned redevelopment of the CityCenter property.

The city is going to reach out to the development community later this year to secure a private development partner and negotiate an agreement that will enable the project to move forward. If a public/private partnership for the redevelopment of CityCenter meets the city's goals, one key component that the council will consider is the possible ending of the ground lease on the site in order to ensure the feasibility of a variety of housing, including for sale condominiums.

As I write this in early April the Colorado legislature is debating Senate Bill 213, which would establish minimum housing development thresholds and requirements for communities like Englewood. New state development requirements are likely to be known by the time you are reading this article, but our council has and will continue to look at all aspects of how Englewood can ensure that a range of housing options are available to Englewood residents into the future.

For more information visit leg.colorado.gov/bills/sb23-213.

Beginning April 10, the City of Englewood will no longer publish its ordinances by Title in the Englewood Herald. Instead, legislation will be published in full at englewoodco.gov/public-notice. Copies also may be obtained in person at the Civic Center, 1000 Englewood Pkwy 3rd floor; or requested on the city's website at englewoodco.gov.

The views expressed in the city council member columns are the views of the individual council members and do not necessarily represent the views of the City of Englewood or the city council as a whole.

When we talk about infrastructure, we typically think about roads and bridges, but it's also important to maintain our city's social infrastructure: the spaces we can gather and connect with one another like our parks, recreation centers and library.

That's why city council has made several new investments in our public library, including enhanced safety measures and additional librarians. We want to ensure that everyone in our community can enjoy the wonderful and wide array of free resources our library offers, because libraries aren't just for books anymore.

Through our new Culture Pass Program, library card holders can check out passes to local cultural institutions, like museums and outdoor destinations. Patrons can also use their library cards to access newspapers online including The Denver Post, Englewood Herald, New York Times and Wall Street Journal.

New this year, the library is hosting a series of art exhibits that showcase local artists, with receptions during each exhibit for community members to meet the artists and discuss their work. The first exhibit takes place April 6 - May 31.

The library also offers Tech Assist twice a week, when anyone can drop-in to ask questions about conducting job searches online, downloading new applications to a cellphone, or how to use ebooks on a tablet.

The library even provides homebound services for people who are unable to come to the library.

If you have questions about these or other services, please stop by or give them a call at 303-762-2560. Our staff and librarians are looking forward to welcoming you back to the library!

The City of Englewood established in 1903, a small community of 6.5 square miles, has been a force to be reckoned with in Colorado. Independent and strong-willed we have kept our Home Rule Authority, twice stopped Denver annexation and maintained a rich history of innovation.

In 1972 Englewood City Council established the Englewood Housing Authority designed with powers to develop, manage and maintain low to moderate income housing for residents of Englewood. The first two properties were Simon Center and Orchard Place. In the past 10 years the Housing Authority has partnered with developers in order to provide additional affordable housing options in Englewood. These properties include: Traditions, The Foundry, Broadway Lofts, Canterbury Apartments and Terraces on Pennsylvania. In exchange developers were given Tax Credits and relieved of paying Property Taxes.

During that time, Englewood also rezoned large sections of Industrial Property for high density development. Six new projects along the light rail corridor, numerous projects in the Hospital district and several projects along the 285 corridor.

In addition, future plans for housing are part of City Center redevelopment, including... "1,070 residential units, retail and office space, a new city hall..." The Englewood Downtown Development Authority is currently looking for a development partner.

According to DOLA 2020 Census information since 2010 Englewood's population has increased by 11.3%, housed in 1,567 additional homes already created. Englewood's minority population has increased by 47% and Englewood currently boasts a population density higher than Denver.

I have lived here most of my life and never expected Englewood to stay the same. At this point we have an opportunity to engage in a thoughtful process to create a vision for our future - the future of Englewood. Will we choose to create a quality of life where people want to be? I believe you, the citizens of Englewood have the power to determine where we will go! Together we can make a difference!

Ready to Work Program to help those experiencing homelessness

To support those experiencing homelessness, the Tri-Cities Homelessness Policy Group will soon host a transitional housing program in Englewood.

On March 17, Congressman Jason Crow (CO-06) presented the Tri-Cities Ready to Work Program with $1.5 million to provide stable housing and career support for unhoused community members. Congressman Crow secured funding for the project through the Fiscal Year 2023 appropriations process to directly benefit Colorado's 6th Congressional District.

Several years ago, the Ready to Work organization received a grant from Google to replicate their model somewhere in Colorado, and the Tri-Cities region was chosen thanks to the established collaboration already in place. These cities – including Englewood, Littleton and Sheridan – have contributed funding to purchase the property, and federal funding will support the renovation and costs to outfit the facility.

When complete, the Englewood Ready to Work site will serve up to 50 people each year.

“We’re excited for Ready to Work to begin impacting the lives of community members struggling with homelessness,” Sandgren said.

The Ready to Work program is already operating sites in Boulder and Aurora, and it will open an Englewood location later this year. Those involved hope to bring the same success seen at the other sites to this community as well.

“At their existing sites, Ready to Work boasts some of the best success metrics amongst traditional housing models,” said Mike Sandgren, Tri-Cities Homelessness Services Coordinator. He also noted these programs have seen an 75% completion rate with 80% housing and employment retention after 12 months.

“We are excited to bring this type of excellence in service provision to our region.”

Ready to Work is one piece of a larger action plan created by the Tri-Cities Homelessness Policy Group, which was formed in 2017 to create a foundation of collaboration and a regional plan to address homelessness.

“We want our residents to be invested in our parks and proud of our amenities. This bond initiative will help us do just that and create pride in Englewood.”

Christina Underhill, Englewood Parks, Recreation, Library and Golf Director

Parks Bond Being Considered for an Updated Englewood

Englewood’s parks and recreation offerings are a part of what makes the city so special. To ensure these city amenities and gathering places continue to be as updated, functional and relevant as possible for residents, city officials are considering a bond measure this November. With up to $45 million of upgrades identified, the support of a bond would make these updates possible – and the improvements available for all residents to use and enjoy.

Other potential improvements are aimed at adding more attractions – and a whole lot of fun – to city spaces.

At Pirates Cove, improvements could be made to the water park’s large pool making it more interactive with added slides and spaces to lounge in the sun. The Englewood Recreation Center has the potential for a ninja crossfit training system incorporated over the pool, as well as a surf simulator – updates intended to increase use year round and attract more teens and young adults.

Bellevue Park is also on the radar. Its 30-year-old train, which was originally donated by the Englewood Lions Club, is aging and needs to be replaced. A successful bond could help purchase a new train to chug around the park.

“We have aging infrastructure in our current park system, and we want to keep the parks exciting and relevant to our residents,” said Christina Underhill, Englewood Parks, Recreation, Library and Golf Director.

Among the needed improvements are updates to nine city parks, including to landscaping, accessible pathways and amenities like picnic shelters, playgrounds, restrooms and sitting areas.

“These are gathering places for our community,” said Underhill, noting the spaces identified for improvements. “They’re a place to get outside and get in touch with nature and play. The parks really enhance the quality of life for our residents.”

City officials will be surveying Englewood residents to gauge interest for a bond measure this fall. They will also continue discussing how much funding would be requested.

Keep an eye out for more information about this potential bond coming soon.

Meet up at the South Broadway Paseos

Head to a welcoming paseo on South Broadway in downtown Englewood for conversation, music, food, libations and people watching! The two paseos were spruced up earlier this year, thanks to the Englewood Downtown Development Authority. Contractors added a coat of new paint, landscaping, trees, string lighting, bike racks and a wheelchair charging station. The improvements were funded through a grant from the Colorado Department of Transportation Revitalizing Main Streets program. Consider this your personal invitation to jump on your bike, take the trolley or stroll downtown to check out the updated paseos!

Innovative, Independent, Industrious

From custom motorcycles cruising the streets to the milk in your cereal, a variety of products and services you may not expect are being produced right here in Englewood. While these businesses may feel behind-the-scenes, they are creating goods and offering services throughout Colorado and beyond, all supporting the local economy and building a sense of pride for the community.

These products and services are as diverse as Englewood's residents; yet for these homegrown businesses, the thread of tradition, family and passion run through them all.

As put by Cody Kiebler, co-owner of Broadway Custom Cycles, "Sometimes we look at each other and say 'Man, I can't believe we get to do this!'"

Kiebler opened this local motorcycle service and custom shop alongside Kevin Bolser in 2020. For the pair of motorheads – one who was previously a metal fabricator and the other pursuing a medical degree – the shop was a dream come true.

"We both agreed we wanted to build motorcycles," Kiebler said, remembering a conversation he and Bolser had about what they would do for a living if money wasn't an issue. "That was our dream at the time when we started building. And it just took off."

Other local businesses have been in the community for decades, with the trade passed down within the family. Gulley Metal Services, a custom metal fabrication and engraving business, was started in Englewood in 1983 by Steve Gulley. Forty years later, the shop is going strong – and is now owned by son Nick Gulley and his wife, Kristi.

"Nick grew up in the shop," said Kristi Gulley. "He's been working here since he's been able to."

"Most shops just specialize in something. We have so many options, we make parts for other metal shops! We're able to fit a custom role." – Kristi Gulley

Through two generations, Gulley Metal Services has built a reputation for creating specialized metal pieces, ranging from decorations for a home to heavy industrial parts, which are sold countrywide.

Family was at the heart of launching Great Guys, an Englewood-based heating, cooling and electrical business. After 26-plus years in the HVAC industry, owner Marcus Fauth said he finally opened his own shop in 2018 thanks to encouragement from his daughter, Maddy Fauth – who owns the business alongside him.

For the father-daughter duo, creating a successful business starts with a strong employee culture.

"It starts within by creating a place of employment where employees enjoy coming to work every day," said Marcus Fauth, adding that this positive work environment builds integrity when serving customers.

A trusted product can go a long way – as proven by Meadow Gold Dairy. With a brand founded in 1901, the Englewood branch opened in 1960. Today, the business is owned by a cooperative of farmers and operates 24/7 to produce milk, cream, half-and-half, buttermilk and ice cream products that are distributed throughout the region.

During its time in Englewood, Meadow Gold has become part of the community, said Scott Johnson, general manager for Colorado.

"One thing that's remained constant was being a community partner with Englewood," Johnson said. Recently, the company and its 280 local employees have hosted coat drives for local students and collected hygiene products for families in need.

For each of these businesses, owners and managers shared that being a part of Englewood is so much more than their location on a map.

"It's important for us to be part of the community," said Kristi Gulley. "It's been good to us."

"We try to promote community in the motorcycle culture. People don't have to have a bike, but if they want to learn about them or be around them, they can come to our shop from 6-10 p.m. every other Thursday to ask questions, hang out and have community time." – Cody Kiebler

Englewood residents interested in running for city council may pick up a candidate information packet from the city clerk's office at 1000 Englewood Parkway. Packets will also be available at englewoodco.gov.

Municipal elections are nonpartisan.

If running, it is important to contact the clerk's office about the Colorado Fair Campaign Practices Act. Within 10 days after announcing your candidacy, you are required to file a "Candidate Affidavit." Grass, overgrowth and weeds - oh my!

The city is in full bloom with flowers and foliage aplenty. Yet with that, the grass is growing (and growing and growing) and some pesky weeds could be popping up. When it comes to lawn care, what's permitted (or not) by the city?

- DO
- Keep your grass and weeds cut to six inches or less. It's not only required, but it will keep your neighborhood looking fresh and clean.
 - Trim trees, shrubs and landscaping back to ensure that traffic signs are visible, and keep sidewalks clear so pedestrians can easily pass.
 - Remove dead or diseased trees, as well as limbs that could pose a danger. Consider using an arborist to help. A complete list of City of Englewood licensed arborists can be found at englewoodco.gov/arborists.
 - Report weed and grass overgrowth at englewoodco.gov/englefix or download the app on Google Play or App Store.

- DON'T
- Leave your cut leaves, branches or yard clippings in the alleyway, which could make it hard for vehicles to pass through or inhibit draining. Work with your trash hauler to dispose of yard waste properly or recycle them into compost on your property.
 - Plant or allow new saplings of female cottonwood, Siberian elm or box elder trees to grow on or adjacent to your property - these are prohibited under the city's municipal code.

But what about the bees? In the past, residents have wondered about the harm of removing dandelions, which are one of the first flowers to emerge in the spring and provide a food source for bees. As a Bee City, the City of Englewood strives to support our pollinators. When it comes to removing these weeds, the city will be flexible with owners and occupants when the flowers first bloom in early spring, but please ensure weeds are still under six inches. Learn more about lawn care and code enforcement at englewoodco.gov/code-enforcement.

City's Strategic Plan 2023 Updates

The Englewood City Council is continuing to make progress in its strategic plan to reach its shared goals while enhancing them to meet the changing needs of the city. In January, city council met to review the progress that's been made on the plan - which provides a strategic vision for the city - and refine areas of focus moving into the future. Key updates include:

► COMMUNITY WELLBEING

► Senior services - This goal will support a deep-dive review into the services offered for older adults in the community with a focus on safety and food security and how to improve them.

► Affordable housing - Council members will explore ways to incorporate more affordable housing options for residents, including through other city partnerships. Also how to best utilize the voter-approved funding from Proposition 123 allocated for affordable housing.

► INFRASTRUCTURE AND TRANSPORTATION

► Focused on eliminating traffic fatalities, this work will support further collaboration and investments, including within the school district. Council members will also dig into data regarding where and why incidents are happening and create a tailored intervention to make improvements.

► ECONOMY

► Updates were made in order to best align with the city's Economic Development Strategic Plan to ensure they're connected and working together.

► SAFETY

► This new goal is focused on communication and community engagement to actively engage with community members regarding information on incidents and provide proactive safety tips and strategies.

Each of these goals has been assigned performance metrics and reporting on those will be shared with council members each quarter of the year. The hope is to have the goals met by the end of 2023. Check out the strategic plan at englewoodco.gov/strategicplan.

Solar and Weatherization available for qualified Englewood residents

Through the Arapahoe County Weatherization Assistance Program, Englewood residents can apply to have an energy assessment completed along with an energy audit to see if their home is suitable for solar.

The Weatherization Assistance Program covers more than just solar, including furnace and water heater safety tests, sealing air leaks, LED light bulbs, insulation in attics, walls and crawl spaces and more.

Weatherizing your home can help save on utility costs, identify safety issues and keep your home at a comfortable temperature year-round. Englewood continues to prioritize sustainable alternatives to align with goals set out in its strategic plan.

Also, Arapahoe County has partnered with GRID Alternatives, a non-profit organization, to provide free solar PV systems for income-eligible homeowners.

For more information about the programs, visit arapahoegov.com/365/Weatherization-Assistance or gridsolar.org.

City incorporates citizen feedback into Water Efficiency Plan

The Englewood Utilities Department wants to extend a "thank you!" to all who provided comments and feedback on the draft Water Efficiency Plan (WEP). Valuable comments were received and incorporated into the final WEP, including:

- ✓ Low-water landscaping educational opportunities
- ✓ Additional water efficiency content on the utilities page of the city's website
- ✓ Evaluation of landscaping and/or appliance and plumbing retrofit incentives
- ✓ Clarification on the importance of monthly billing from a water efficiency standpoint
- ✓ Assessment of the water rate structure to promote water efficiency
- ✓ Corrected water savings percentages for Depot Park
- ✓ Revised tables and figures to provide more clarity on the data presented
- ✓ Additional explanation on water efficient fixtures for new construction

The final WEP was adopted by the Englewood City Council on February 6. It will be posted at www.engaged.englewoodco.gov/water-efficiency-plan following final approval by the Colorado Water Conservation Board. The city appreciates the citizen involvement that helped reach this goal!

New Security Measures in Place at Civic Center and Library

Earlier this year, the city temporarily closed the library, north Civic Center lobby and second floor restrooms at the Civic Center after receiving positive tests for drug contamination. While these areas are now open for public use, the closure gave city officials the opportunity to thoroughly clean these spaces and update security measures to keep them safe into the future.

To avoid recontamination, proactive measures and practices have been put in place, including:

- Installation of vape detector alarms to alert staff of drug use in the bathrooms.
- Increased funding to support additional library staff, creating a better patron experience.
- Expanded security, through a private firm (pictured), to oversee additional surveillance inside and outside the library.
- Four additional security guards at the Civic Center, with funding approved in a February city council study session.
- Rule changes to require checking out a key for bathroom use at the library, as well as updates for the use of study and meeting rooms.
- Closing the library's north entrance. Library patrons will only be able to access the library from the south side of the Civic Center.

Through these updates, city officials hope to offer a safer, cleaner experience for residents and patrons.

Development Code Updates Underway

Englewood's land use development code is being redrafted for the first time since 2004, and those involved are using this opportunity to discuss ways to meet the city's changing needs.

The project, called CodeNext, is led by a steering committee of community members and is focused on amending the Unified Development Code, which includes regulations and design standards for zoning, land uses, building height, parking, neighborhood character and more. CodeNext hopes to modernize Englewood's approach to development regulation while maintaining the city's unique character and history.

On April 17, Englewood City Council unanimously agreed to no longer pursue two- to four- unit multifamily buildings in single-family zoning. Council will be pursuing a comprehensive housing plan for the city with the appointment of an affordable housing task force guiding the work over the next several months.

In March, Senate Bill 23-213 was introduced in the Colorado State Senate. If passed in its present form, the scope of this comprehensive land use legislation would introduce new requirements into established single family zone districts in many cities in the state, including Englewood, to allow accessory dwelling units and multifamily residential units.

The remaining elements of CodeNext will continue to be considered for adoption by the planning and zoning commission and the city council this spring.

Learn more about CodeNext at www.engaged.englewoodco.gov/codenext.

Celebrate 'Where Community Grows' during July's Parks and Recreation Month

Englewood parks and recreation offerings are part of what make the city so special – and there has never been a better time to celebrate them than during the National Parks and Recreation Month this July.

Created through the National Recreation and Park Association, the annual tradition aims to promote building strong, vibrant and resilient communities through the power of parks and recreation, as well as honor park and recreation professionals.

This year's theme is "Where Community Grows" – and a look at Englewood proves just how parks can bring people together to thrive.

"Englewood parks are unique, inclusive and thriving, just like our community," said Lindsay Peterson, open space activities supervisor. "They have something for everyone – from events to playgrounds, dog parks to fields, tennis courts to pavilions, and even a farm and train – that continues to help the community grow."

Englewood's parks are designed to provide a gathering place for residents across generations, where they can come together to relax, play, exercise and make a difference for the community.

From taking a chug on the train and visiting animals at the Farm & Train to river surfing the rapids at River Run Trailhead, residents of all ages can find something to explore in Englewood. Parks offer places for the community to bloom, such as at the Community Garden, where gardeners can dig in to grow produce for food banks.

"The city's parks and programs have created a sense of tradition among those in Englewood," said Allison Boyd, Englewood Recreation Manager.

The adult and youth sports leagues allow parents to coach their children in the same leagues they played in growing up. Also the summer drama program has become a community staple, performing musicals for all to enjoy since 1966.

"Englewood parks are 'Where Community Grows' physically, emotionally and socially," Peterson added.

This July, residents are encouraged to get out and enjoy all that Englewood parks and recreation has to offer. As part of the festivities, keep an eye out for videos and special events, as well as the July 21 Parks and Recreation Professional Day celebration. Learn more at englewoodco.gov/play.

PILATES

Pilates exercises with controlled movement improve flexibility, build strength and develop control and endurance within the entire body. Throughout the class, the priority is promoting alignment and breathing to develop a strong core, which will help improve coordination and balance. The core, which consists of the muscles of the abdomen, lower back and hips, often called the “powerhouse,” is thought to be the key to a person’s stability. Our program provides safe modifications that range from beginning to advanced, specific to the participant’s goals or limitations.

Our 4-Step Pilates Program takes you from an initial orientation to an advanced level for an additional challenge. This program will provide a safe, enjoyable, challenging workout for both the new and experienced Pilates participants.
